

Domain owners, in general, have full control over their Backland Communications registered domain names. This means that the domain owner has the power to:

1. Change admin/technical and billing contacts for the domain.
2. Change ownership of the domain.
3. Change the nameservers that are authoritative for the domain.
4. Create sub-users and enable them to change some/all of the options in 1, 2, or 3 above.
5. Change the password that enables 1, 2, 3, or 4 above.

As an end-user, it is unlikely you will care to bother with such details. If this is the case, we offer these services as a 'value-add' to the registration service.
