

Once an expired domain has been renewed, how long does it take for the services to begin working again

Assuming that the domain DNS and hosts are still in place, the domain will begin working within 48 hours of its renewal. We put the domain back into the Internet root name servers immediately, the delay is caused by propagation out from the root name servers. Registrants are encouraged to renew their domains prior to the expiry date.